Red card for domestic violence

THE ROYAL borough has launched a new phase in its ongoing campaign to combat domestic violence.

Newly designed posters are being displayed in on-street adverts, local buses and train stations and also in public buildings, including community centres, police stations, libraries, schools and children's centres.

It comes on the back of research which shows a link between major sporting events and the level of domestic abuse reported in England and Wales, particularly during large sporting events such as the Football World Cup which started last week.

The royal borough has issued a new set of football-themed posters warning the perpetrators and reminding victims where they can get help.

Crime figures for the borough released earlier this year showed an overall fall in crime for the 5th year running but a 16.5 % increase in domestic offences.

The council with key partners officially launched the Royal Greenwich Against Domestic Violence and Abuse Campaign earlier this year. Set up to tackle violence and abuse in the home, it involves a range of initiatives designed to raise awareness of the issue and encourage victims and their families or friends to report assaults and abuse.

The campaign is supported by local police, health services and local charities Housing for Women and The Her Centre.

A key part of the drive is the new Domestic Violence and Intervention Team (DVIT) a four-strong group of specially trained police officers led by a detective inspector.

The team, funded by the royal borough, has been launched to provide a round the clock response to reports of abuse and violence. It also helps

NEW COUNCIL LEADER: Cllr Denise Hyland

by Hilary Bryan

THE new leader of Greenwich Council has praised residents and community groups who give their time to make the royal borough a better place to live and work.

Cllr Denise Hyland particularly thanked school governors, park friends, environment champions and Neighbourhood Watch leaders for their contribution to the running of the borough saying: "There's so much good work going on in terms of volunteering and a real sense of community on our housing estates. They are the unsung heroes who are making our borough richer for their presence and we want to build on that sense of civic pride and sense of place."

What about a user group to resolve gripes over libraries?

FOLLOWING recent adverse comments on the Letters page of Greenwich Time about the Woolwich Centre Library, are there any plans to create a user group? Many issues could be addressed by a representative group working with staff at Woolwich which could be repeated at all libraries throughout the borough.

Steve Daly, Shooters Hill

● A spokesman for Greenwich Leisure Limited, which runs the borough's libraries, said: "Thank you for your suggestion. GLL works closely with 'Friends Groups' in many of our libraries. In the Royal Borough of Greenwich, we have a highly effective partnership with the Friends of West Greenwich Library. We would like to do the same in Woolwich. Therefore, we are holding an open evening at Woolwich Library in September to encourage members of the community to establish a working Friends Group so that we may work in partnership with them. To express an interest in joining the group or for more information, email Greenwich.libraries@gll.org"

SUMMER OSBORN: 'I took these pictures in Sutcliffe Park as the sun was setting. It demonstrates the amazing nature and beautiful wildlife to be found in our local community park.'

Are travel troubles a hint of whatever will be in January?

● RECENTLY, a colleague and I needed to travel by train from London Bridge to Woolwich.

We discovered that London Bridge had been demolished, that signage was misleading and that tickets could only be purchased from machines – few of which were working.

This does not bode well for next January, onwards, when travellers on the Greenwich line will not be able to travel to Charing Cross directly (Greenwich trains will not stop at London Bridge and passengers will be obliged to use the Underground or bus from Cannon Street, adding time and expense to the journey). I discovered that my colleague knew nothing about the impending disruptions.

Subsequent discussions with friends and perusals of social sites brought about the realisation that very few people in the area know about this, although it raised several issues concerning travel to work, shops and entertainment in the West End and, more worryingly, how residents will be impeded from visiting Guy's and St Thomas's Hospitals.

While I realise that the works will eventually bring much-needed improvements to the service, there appears to be absolutely no information about this at any of the railway stations – London Bridge included – and very little has been written about it in the local press. I would be grateful if you could do something to highlight this situation.

Deborah O'Boyle, Plumstead Common

A spokesman for Southeastern rail said: "Greenwich line services will see timetable changes from Monday January 12, 2015 and will be affected throughout the four-year period that the Thameslink work at London Bridge will cover. The layout of the tracks around London Bridge will change during the work to mean that Greenwich line trains can no longer continue to Waterloo East and Charing Cross. We are providing additional Cannon Street services as an alternative and working with the Department for Transport and Transport for London to agree arrangements for ticket acceptance on other services. We believe that passengers should not be out of pocket as a result of the changes and are working towards that aim. Once the Department for Transport has confirmed arrangements we will begin to communicate options to our customers and we anticipate a series of pushes over the next six months to make sure that our customers are both well-informed about the changes and knowledgeable about their travel options during the work."

D-Day brought to life

WE WERE THERE:
Harry Card (white beret) and Joe Hoadley shared their memories with pupils

by Ian Lamont

CHILDREN at Charlton Manor Primary School learnt about D-Day first hand when two veterans of the beach landings which led to the end of the Second World War paid them a visit.

Harry Card, was just 19 and Joe Hoadley 17 when they were part of the Allied Forces which landed on the beaches of Normandy 70 years ago.

The D-Day landings took place between June 6 and 17, 1944, with half a million troops pushing inland in France on their way to liberating Europe.

The men spoke to the school's 400 pupils in assembly, with one playing 'There'll be bluebirds over the white cliffs of Dover' on a harmonica as the other sang as they talked about Dame Vera Lynn, the forces sweetheart famous for entertaining troops.

They spent further time with Year 4 pupils, helping them with their work on the Second World War.

Harry described how his landing craft picked up 93 Swedish men after their boat was torpedoed by a German U boat.

Joe landed in Normandy on day five, and described his story, including becoming a prisoner of war in Belgium.

Joe described to the children how he had landed on day five and been sent straight to the front.

On the way, they were given the option of digging a trench or lying on the ground to sleep.

Having not dug a trench, they woke up to find themselves under fire.

Then, when his vehicle ended up in a ditch, he was captured and sent to a prisoner of war camp, which was liberated but not before the Allied Forces had tried to attack it, having been falsely informed it was a German stronghold.

Headteacher Tim Baker said: "They told the children they were not heroes, all they were doing was the same as everyone else - trying to stop Hitler gaining more power.

"The children have been reenacting the physical elements needed for D-Day in their PE lessons and describing the characteristics of Armed Forces personnel, such as brave and fearless.

Mr Baker said: "One of them wrote 'they put their plans for their futures aside for us'."

Pupils also put messages with thought candles, saying things such as "Thank you for fighting for our futures."

The veterans, who regularly do talks in schools, will return on July 4 as the children commemorate the 100th anniversary of the end of the First World War.

Health sets a gold standard

HEALTHY HELP: Chef Raymond Blanc shows students how to make wholesome food at an event last year

HEALTHY eating has led to Charlton Manor Primary becoming the only primary school to receive the Healthy Schools London gold award.

About 1,000 schools received awards, but there were only two golds - the other to a secondary school.

Representatives of the school received the award at a presentation in City Hall.

Headteacher Tim Baker said: "It's health in all its terms. It's healthy eating and the curriculum is built around it.

"We also run three classes a week after school where parents get to cook with their children and have sessions for parents of children who are fussy eaters."

Not only are the school meals healthy but the tuck shop is stocked with items made by the chefs and they have an allotment.

They also have a special area designated for pupils to calm down or use it as a place to talk to someone if they feel upset or angry.

Success for police team set up to tackle domestic violence to signpost victims to local agencies and supports them through the legal system and refers perpetrators to self help networks.

Since its launch the team has targeted 158 perpetrators, conducted 1,026 home welfare visits and obtained 41 restraining orders.

DVIT leader Detective Inspector Scott Walker said: "Our specially trained team of detectives have the extra time and capacity to make meaningful interventions in domestic abuse situations - particularly those involving repeat victims and perpetrators. The cooperation of victims very much depends on building up relationships over the long term and this instils greater confidence in victims to support prosecution, or to make the life-changing decisions to escape abusive relationships. This has paid enormous dividends in combating repeat victimisation and offending."

The innovative work of the team will feature in a BBC Crimewatch documentary focusing on domestic violence at the end of the month.

Details of the campaign are available at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/domesticabuse with links to 24-hour support while extra funding means the advice line, on 020 8317 8273 is available for five days instead of three.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the royal borough's cabinet member for community safety and environment said: "Tackling violence and abuse is a key priority for the council as we try to make the royal borough a better place to live. Domestic violence usually happens behind closed doors and people may not know what to do or where they can go for help. This phase of our campaign reminds everyone who comes forward that support is available. It also sends out a very strong message that any form of abusive behaviour will be challenged and that there'll be a sustained approach to prosecution."

Police operation drives illegal motorists off the streets

TEN vehicles were seized, 38 tickets issued and two drivers arrested in an operation to drive uninsured and unroadworthy vehicles from the streets of Royal Greenwich.

The first of its kind, Operation Sync, on June 6, proved very effective. One driver was arrested for being disqualified and the other for taking a vehicle without the owner's consent.

Chief Superintendent Helen Millichap of Greenwich said: "We're delighted to have seized these vehicles and made these arrests.

"By working to deny criminals use of the roads and ensuring licensed venues uphold their responsibilities, we're showing the public what the Met is doing to keep London safe."

The police-led exercise involved officers using a mobile ID Scan at the roadside for the first time to verify the authenticity of driver's documents. Local officers were supported by colleagues from the Met Special Constabulary (MSC) while Roads and Transport Policing (RATP) assisted in carrying out in-depth interrogation of ID documentations, insurance policies and driving licenses.

War on illegal cigs

£13,000 worth of tobacco and alcohol seized in raids by council and HMRC

by Ian Lamont

ILLEGAL tobacco and alcohol with an estimated value of £13,000 has been seized from businesses in the royal borough.

A joint operation took place between trading standards officers at the Royal Borough of Greenwich and HMRC and the Met Police on two days at the end of May.

It was the second such operation, the first was in April, and involved specialist detection dog company Wagtail UK.

In total, 47 properties have been visited so far, with items seized from 15 premises and further operations set to take place.

The haul from the most recent investigation includes more than 14,800 cigarettes, 11kg chewing tobacco and 0.6kg of hand-rolling tobacco.

These were all foreign labelled or suspected of being counterfeit or having had no duty paid on them.

HMRC also seized 120 litres of spirits and 163 litres of wine.

Last August, the council joined forces with five other South East London boroughs against the sale of illegal tobacco. It followed a survey of 1,700 smokers which found that an estimated 114 million illegal cigarettes, with a street value of more than £22m, were sold annually in the region.

Four in 10 smokers interviewed in the survey indicated they had bought illegal tobacco and 80 per cent of those said they knew or had been introduced to the seller.

Cllr Jackie Smith, cabinet member for

SUSPECT GOODS: Cigarettes and alcohol seized with the help of a sniffer dog community safety and environment, said: "The sale of illegal tobacco and alcohol has many damaging effects on our local communities and honest business owners.

"It brings criminals and crime to the royal borough, as well as causing poor health. This has the clear potential to undermine the huge amounts of work done in education and in helping people quit as well as in dealing with crime."

Cllr Maureen O'Mara, cabinet member for community wellbeing and public health said: "The availability of cheap illegal tobacco is a potentially big factor in recruiting young smokers and keeping older people smoking.

"We believe there is a clear link between high smoking rates and availability of illegal tobacco."

● Greenwich residents can report the sale of illegal tobacco by ringing the council's trading standards service on 020 8921 8223 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Theatre course show down

FINAL CURTAIN: talented students perform in the last show for the Musical Theatre course

IT was the final curtain call for a school's musical theatre course earlier this month.

Students from Plumstead Manor's BTEC Musical Theatre course performed their last ever show, entitled 'The Big Screen Experience'.

The show was a mix of song, dance and show tunes from famous films through the years.

Students also devised a silent movie, which included a hilarious chase sequence, and recited memorable monologues from films such as The Godfather and The Third Man.

Event management students designed and organised the show, with old-fashioned ushers, handing out sweets during the interval.

Launched in 2004, the course has seen many students go on to make successful careers in performing arts, including X Factor finalist Jade Ellis and Simeon Campbell, a well established choreographer who went on to become a tutor on the course. A fall in funding and dwindling numbers led to its closure although pupils can still study music, dance, drama and a new events management course.

Rachel Morgan, BTEC student said: "I have loved every minute of this course. It has given me great confidence in myself and my abilities. I have achieved so much more than I could have done on a more traditionally 'academic' course. It's been really hard work, but incredibly rewarding and so much fun. I feel that I have learned skills that I will use for the rest of my life".

Shirley Sewell, assistant head and director of specialisms, said: "I feel so sad this course has come to an end. I am immensely proud of our students and all the things they go on to achieve in the world of performing arts".

CHARITY CASH: the winning team accept a cheque for £3,000 to go to the Emmaus UK charity

Philanthropic pupils speak up for homeless

FOUR girls from Plumstead Manor Secondary School have earned £3,000 for a charity that helps homeless people. They won the school's Philanthropy Initiative, where teams compete for a good cause by giving a presentation to convince the judges that they deserve to win.

Tina and Garima Rana, Fahmida Babul and Sheetal Gurung from Year 9 made a strong case for the Emmaus UK charity, which has a branch in Plumstead. They promoted their choice with a self-made video, a song and a poem, supported by a banner the made. The judges, made up of other students and teachers, decided they were the best out of the eight teams which took part. The project was organised by Orkun Ari who teaches citizenship at the school. He said: "Everyone was thoroughly behind them, but all the presentations were so close and all of a high standard."

New tourism training course offer for business and staff

LOCAL firms can give an even warmer welcome to the 20 million visitors who come to the borough each year thanks to a new tourism training programme.

The Visit Greenwich Welcome Programme is on offer to staff in local businesses - particularly those who deal with visitors face-to-face.

The programme helps staff to brush up on their local knowledge and improve the way they meet visitors' needs.

It consists of a two-hour guided walk with useful information on basic history, transport links, local attractions, useful services and accommodation. It's aimed at all customer-facing staff in Greenwich businesses and will give participants the local knowledge to provide a high-quality service to customers.

The walk begins with refreshments in the restaurant area of Novotel London Greenwich (next to Greenwich train and DLR station) and ends with a short presentation at the Greenwich Tourist Information Centre of its services to visitors. It's been devised by the local destination management company Visit Greenwich working with Greenwich Community College and Greenwich Tour Guides Association.

Businesses can book staff for a session beginning at 3pm on June 19 or 20 or July 10 or 11. Sessions are £10 per person and other dates are available on request.

Cllr Miranda Williams, the council's cabinet member for culture and creative industries, said: "The royal borough attracts around 20 million visitors a year which creates £1billion for the local economy and supports 12,000 jobs. We support this initiative to improve the visitor experience to Royal Greenwich as part of our ongoing effort to encourage visitors to stay longer and explore attractions across the borough."

Year milestone for Money House

KERCHING! The Money House is celebrating a year of helping young people with their pounds, shillings and pence.

The independent living scheme was set up by the Hyde Group to help 16-24 year olds cope with their finances, and celebrated a successful first year last week.

The initiative has helped more than 100 young people experience and manage independent living, coming face to face with financial management and social issues that come with living alone for the first time.

Sarah Thurman, director of Hyde Plus said: "We are very proud that The Money House now has over 100 graduates and so many of these young people are putting their new skills to good use, living in their own homes. The project demonstrates how improving financial skills and confidence can have a significant impact on individuals, as well as reducing arrears for social landlords like ourselves, which is vital in the current climate."

The Money House is led by The Hyde Group and supported by a group of partners including the council,

MONEY KNOW-HOW: Greenwich and Woolwich MP Nick Raynsford meets staff and advisers at the Money House last autumn

Greenwich CAB and Meridian Money Advice.

The initiative will receive approximately £1m funding over four years, from the Big Lottery Improving Financial Confidence programme.

Hyde and its partners hope to secure further funding to extend the project and offer support to other London boroughs.

ROYAL BOROUGH OF GREENWICH ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984 – SECTION 14 (1) VARIOUS ROADS – TEMPORARY PROHIBITIONS AND RESTRICTIONS OF TRAFFIC

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council of the Royal Borough of Greenwich intends to make an Order to accommodate carriageway resurfacing works in Folesbury Road, Green Lane and Western Way. The effect of the Order would be to temporarily:

- implement various traffic management measures, dependent on site conditions, which would include road closures, prohibited turns at adjacent roads, waiting restrictions and the suspension of any existing restrictions that conflict with these measures, as and when required in Green Lane (between Edgbery and Mansfield Road), Folesbury Road (between Green Lane and Manor Road) and Western Way (between Pettman Crescent and Eastern Way); and

- remove the prohibition on vehicles passing through the fire gate situated in Beverland Road in order to aid the free movement of traffic.

NOTE: The works in the above roads would not be conducted concurrently.

The works would be conducted on a "rolling" programme and, as such, not all the restrictions stated in paragraph 1 would be in force in all the affected roads at any one time. The road closures would only be applied, wherever possible, in the immediate vicinity of the works. Vehicular access to properties affected by these works would be maintained wherever possible subject to the extent and operations of the works.

- The restrictions and suspensions in the above roads would only apply at such times and to such extent as shall be indicated by the placing of the appropriate traffic signs. Vehicular access to properties affected by these works would be maintained wherever possible subject to the extent and operations of the works.

- Whilst the restrictions specified in paragraph 1 are in operation the alternative route for traffic:

- prevented from using Folesbury Road would be via Green Lane and Southwood Road and vice versa;
- prevented from accessing the northern half of the roundabout situated at the junction of Central Way, Eastern Way, Western Way and White Hart Avenue and approaching from:

- Central Way would be via Carlyle Road and Eastern Way or
- Western Way would be via Plumstead High Street, Bessell Hill, Beech Hill and Harrow Mainway;

- prevented from accessing the southern half of the roundabout situated at the junction of Central Way, Eastern Way, Western Way and White Hart Avenue and approaching from either Eastern Way or White Hart Avenue would be via Nathan Way, Plumstead Road, Pettman Crescent and Western Way;

- prevented from accessing Western Way from Pettman Crescent would be diverted via Pettman Crescent, Nathan Way and Eastern Way;

- in relation to the other roads specified in paragraph 1, would be via local roads at appropriate and vehicles should follow local diversary signing.

- The Order would come into force on 1st August 2014 and would continue in force for up to 18 months, or until the works have been completed, whichever is the sooner. However, it is expected that the works would take approximately three months to complete.

- Queries concerning these works should be directed to the Royal Borough of Greenwich's Directorate of Regeneration, Enterprise & Skills on 020 8921 5466.

Never too late to learn

by Dick Townsend-Smith

'TWITTER for Beginners', 'French for the Terrified' and 'Making a Bug Box for your Garden' are just some of the 60 or so sessions available during Adult Learners' Week, which started on Saturday (June 14).

A huge range of activities and courses are on offer – and they are all absolutely free. They include writing and spelling skills, speaking Spanish, and IT and social media courses, in addition to creative sessions.

Activities take place in schools, libraries, parks, community centres and the Old Royal Naval College in Greenwich.

They're run by Greenwich Community College with the council and partner organisations.

Sandeep Saib from Greenwich Community College said: "We know that adults who continue to learn throughout their lives are healthier, happier and have greater self-confidence and self-esteem."

Scores of people went to a showcase by students at Greenwich Community College's King George Street branch in Greenwich on June 7. They enjoyed free taster sessions and demonstrations and an arts and craft fair.

The council's cabinet member for business and employment, Cllr Sizwe James said: "Adult Learners Week is an opportunity for people to make a difference to their own lives - whether it's about gaining a new skill, building self confidence or improving employability and I hope people take this chance to learn and have fun."

It's been organised by the Thamesmead development charity, Trust Thamesmead, in partnership with the Workers Education Association and local community groups.

Running throughout June at venues across Thamesmead, residents are able to take part and learn more about volunteering, self-defence, dance, wildlife, IT, touch-typing, finance, drama, Italian, art, creative writing and knitting. Classes are short and designed to give learners a taste of what's involved and to see whether they would enjoy it.

Mums march to highlight deaths in pregnancy and birth

SOUTH London mums will march through Greenwich to highlight the number of unacceptable deaths of pregnant women and babies in poor countries.

Anyone is welcome to take part in the event on June 28 which starts at 11am in Charlton Park by registering online, and it's suitable for all ages.

Eight hundred women die every day from preventable causes related to pregnancy and childbirth, 99 per cent of them are from the world's poorest communities.

Londoners will be marching to raise awareness and raise funds for Health Poverty Action.

In northern Bombali in Sierra Leone many women have to walk over 5km to reach a health centre, so people in Greenwich will be walking 5km in solidarity with them.

‘Housing is the biggest single issue for people’

She made a pledge to improve the quality of their lives outlining her priorities which include fighting for more jobs, affordable housing, improved transport and air quality while tackling crime.

The Abbey Wood ward councillor was officially elected as leader of the council at a council annual meeting on Wednesday last week.

Cllr Hyland will also lead the Labour group, which increased its majority by three seats in the local elections in May.

She said: “I feel an enormous sense of responsibility for the 254,000 residents, the businesses, public and private partners as well as for the council’s 6,000 or so staff.

“But it is a huge privilege and I do feel I’m a custodian - the baton has been passed to me and it’s so important to get it right,” she told GT.

The former English and drama teacher worked at two Greenwich schools and at Greenwich Community College before her election to Shooters Hill ward in 2006, fulfilling a long-held ambition to become a councillor.

Speaking as the first woman to be council leader in the borough, she added: “I hope to foster good working relations both internally in the council and with our partners. I want communities to feel empowered.

“I do want to listen to what communities are telling us and we’ll do this through many avenues whether it’s through community groups such as the friends of parks, housing panels and residents associations or the Great Get Together. The agenda is so full but as a council we need to listen to our residents and businesses.”

She added: “Initially it’s about dealing with the coalition’s cuts in a way that has least impact on frontline services. Importantly, we need to protect preventative services where the provision of a service actually helps to solve problems.”

Highlighting her priorities for the year ahead the former cabinet member for regeneration, enterprise and skills, said: “I want to see growth and ensure business is investing in the borough. Through that we plan to get a good supply of jobs for people.

“We’ll focus on getting people off benefits and into work as we know people are better off in work. And we want to give people the skills that are required by providing the skills training for people to access.”

And she stressed: “Housing is the biggest single issue for people at the moment. We want to see a ready supply of affordable housing and we’re working hard to get more grant aid so we can bring more affordable housing to the borough.

“We want to improve the economic prosperity of everyone and we want developers and business to actively invest in our borough. One of our key priorities is better and more efficient transport and we will, for example, continue to argue the case with Transport for London for a DLR link to Eltham and Thamesmead.”

The council leader focused on the difficulty of balancing the need for good transport with the need to improve people’s health through improved air quality.

“Improved transport infrastructure is key to the regeneration of the borough.”

She said there would be continued council investment in VOCUS, the borough’s Violent and Organised Crime Unit set up in partnership with borough police in 2008.

“We are very pleased about the work being done in lowering crime and making Greenwich a safer place.”

She continued: “When we had the tragedy of Lee Rigby it reminded us how strong we are and how stronger we are together. We faced adversity but it brought us together rather than driving us apart. New populations are arriving but largely we are a stable community.”

Cllr Hyland also paid tribute to Cllr Chris Roberts who was council leader for 14 years.

“There has been fantastic commitment to the borough and vision. Looking back on the last 14 years so much has been achieved: we’ve seen the white elephant of the Dome become the O2, the development of the peninsula and Kidbooke and Woolwich included in Crossrail. His focus has always been on improving the lives of people who live and work here.

“I am committed to a Greenwich that has better transport, a cleaner, safer, healthier environment and safer streets. We want to make it a place where people are happy to live and work and continue to be proud of.”

CALL UP: a spoof on the famous Lord Kitchener poster appeals for actors, below, poet Wilfred Owen

Actors wanted for WWI play

IT is not Lord Kitchener making the call this time, but local playwright Robert Fanshawe.

Robert is part of the Global Fusion Music & Arts writers group and has written a play about the First World War poet Wilfred Owen to mark the centenary of WWI this year.

Now Robert, landlord of the Castle Tavern, Woolwich, and Global Fusion Music & Arts are looking for actors, directors, a stage manager, stage crew, a seamstress and other volunteers to be involved with the play 'About the Boys,' and the project.

There will be a photographic exhibition 'Then and Now' at Charlton House in November and GFMA will be working with three local schools who will perform the play on November 11 and 14 in Charlton House. Visits to the Firepower Museum and Greenwich Heritage Centre are also part of the project.

In the meantime, an extract from the play will be shown at the Charlton Triangle Homes 'Taster Day 2' Festival on Saturday July 19 at the Cherry Orchard Estate, Charlton.

GFMA project manager Louisa Le Marchand, said: "Charlton House was a WWI hospital and Kidbrooke was an airfield used to shoot down the Zeppelins who attacked Woolwich during WWI. These will be part of the project as well as the song sung by the women arms workers in Woolwich and there'll be a reconstructed trench at Woolwich Barracks - it's all very exciting. So if you're an experienced actor, want to have a go or just to be a part of the project, come along to the auditions at Charlton House, on Monday July 7 from 7.30 - 9.30pm."

For details call 020 8858 9497, visit www.globalfusionarts.co.uk

THE centenary of the start of the First World War is incorporated into this year's Greenwich and Docklands International Festival.

The death of Arch Duke Franz Ferdinand is the inspiration behind the festival's grand finale artistic director Bradley Hemmings exclusively revealed to GT.

"This year's big finale event is a fantastic performance at the Woolwich Arsenal that coincides with the 100-year anniversary of the death of Arch Duke Franz Ferdinand, an event that triggered the First World War.

There is a performance that explores war and community and it is a spectacle for all members of the community to enjoy," Bradley told GT.

The way war is reported in the media features in another production at the start of the festival. War Correspondents looks at the plight of a journalist held at gunpoint while reporting the outbreak of war.

The free theatre performances use testimonies, music and dance to explore the life-changing experiences of war journalists at the Old Royal Naval College June 20-22.

Part of the Royal Greenwich Festivals summer programme, the nine-day outdoor performing arts festival takes place across areas of Woolwich and Greenwich as well as the riverside of West India Dock.

Familiar streets, buildings and landscapes are set to be transformed like never before when international street artists, acrobats and dancers take to the streets from June 20-28.

"Audiences can expect a grand, spectacular and intense string of performances at some familiar locations, the streets and in the air. We are very keen to reach out to all areas of the community and this year is very interactive, we have shows right before your eyes, family friendly entertainment, workshops and interactive games targeted at younger audiences," Bradley explained.

Families and young people will be able to join in with interactive shows

this year's event

ALL STYLES: performances include Murare presented by Voala, main picture, C-12 Dance Theatre present Market Stall, Joan Catala from Spain presents PELAT and Opus II is presented by Fanfare Le SNOB and entertaining workshops designed to bring the audience right in the heart of the action.

This year's festival joins 26 UK and international companies together, uniting ingenuity, creativity and resourcefulness for a spectacularly choreographed event.

It was Bradley's expertise in mass audience presentations that led to the creative director's appointment as co-director for the opening ceremony of London's Paralympics in 2012. His experiences on both projects are reflected in all his work winning him global acclaim but the riverside extravaganza, running since 1996, still holds a special place for Bradley.

"The Paralympics was an amazing thing to be a part of and my knowledge of performing arts and experiences of working on GDIF inspired ideas for the ceremony and the case has been the same approaching GDIF events since then. The reason I keep coming back to direct the festival is down to the fantastic support from audiences in Greenwich, and the spirit of the community in Greenwich continues to excite me," he said.

IMPORTANT NOTICE FOR ROYAL BOROUGH TENANTS WHO ARE MOVING

DON'T GET A BILL AFTER YOU LEAVE

Under the conditions of your tenancy agreement, you have a responsibility to leave your property in an acceptable state of repair. We may visit you to check this. If we consider your property is in an unacceptable condition, you may be prevented from moving or be recharged for work.

To avoid getting an unwelcome bill, follow these rules:

- Repair any damage caused to the property by you, your family or visitors to your home.
- Make good any changes you have made to your property e.g. put back any doors that you have removed.
- Make sure your garden is not overgrown and you have cleared all garden waste.
- Clear all your items from the inside and the outside of the property. This includes any loft space, external cupboards or sheds.
- Return all the keys to the Royal Borough's offices no later than midday on Monday (or Tuesday if it is a Bank Holiday). You will be charged a further week's rent if you do not return your keys on time.

If you leave repairs that are your responsibility, or items that require disposal you will be charged the cost of this work.

Special Collection Service

The Royal Borough offers a Special Collection Service for tenants who are moving and want to dispose of something big and bulky, like a sofa or a fridge, and even unwanted clothes and other textiles.

Simply contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661 and tell them where you live and what you would like taken away.

Items we will collect include:

Fridges, freezers, washing machines, beds, sofas, clothes and carpets (carpets must be cut up and tied into manageable bundles that one person can carry).

Items we DO NOT collect include:

Fitted kitchens, bathroom suites, boilers, sheds, fences and rubble.

For further information, please contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661.

Please leave your home in a good condition!

the Football Association.

Kay said: "It's been unbelievable for us - a real lifeline."

"My husband died three years ago and they are an incredible group of people who have really seen us through. When you have a disabled child you feel isolated, as do they."

Emily has been a part of the successful Greenwich Powerchair Football Club who currently top their South East division, having "not been able to score a goal this time last year", said Kay.

They were presented with the FA Charter Standard award, which rewards high standards of provision, including for coaching and child protection, when a large throng of athletes, parents and supporters attended a 10th anniversary party at Charlton Athletic last week.

Emily, 13, has cerebral palsy and water on the brain and walks with the aid of a frame and, for sport, competes in the wheelchair.

She said of the league: "It makes a difference to me because if it wasn't for them I wouldn't be able to do sports. With the special league I can join in with the others.

"As a result of wheelchair football, I've met three boys and with a couple of others we will all go to the cinema and other places."

"I didn't really have the confidence to go out on my own before."

Shea French-Gibbens, Kieron Gibbons and Kyle Alexander - whom she has known since nursery - are the others who are looking to maintain top spot in the wheelchair league in the next round of games in September.

The league's activities go from strength to strength.

Wheelchair tennis sessions have been put on at Crown Woods School. They were initially for pupils to try the sport - whether they had disabilities or not - but now the disability sessions are being opened to the wider community.

The new Wheelchair Tennis Club is open to anyone over 14 with a disability, whether in a wheelchair or not.

Sessions are also being offered at Hornfair Park Tennis Courts on Friday mornings from 11am-noon.

JJ hands on Queen's message for Commonwealth Games

JONATHAN 'JJ' Webb enjoyed celebrity status at the Olympic Park as part of the baton relay ahead of the Commonwealth Games in Glasgow in July.

Great Britain's top sabre fencer at U20s level was one of 12 Londoners to carry the baton, which contains the Queen's message for competitors and is making its way around the Commonwealth.

The 18-year-old, from New Eltham, was nominated by Greenwich Starting Blocks, the charity which supports promising young athletes.

"I was the first person to walk out with the baton after a presentation on the stage and we got to walk down the stretch and have pictures taken at various points with the crowd and other people."

The event was combined with a Festival of Sport, in which JJ had the chance to see inside the velodrome and revisit the swimming complex he had last seen at the UK School Games before the London 2012 Olympics.

"I tried wheelchair basketball, which was fun - and I take my hat off to the power athletes because it's a lot different to normal basketball."

"There's a lot more to think about."

"We also had a bit of dancing at the dance bus." Retired boxer Barry McGuigan was among the celebrities at the event, which came just before the last of JJ's A-levels.

With international competitions starting in September, he will take a gap year as he focuses on making the junior Commonwealth Games in Cape Town, South Africa, next year.

'It's our special lifeline'

FUN: The two teams (main picture) plus, below, Darren Thomas and keeper Richard Daly during the game. Inset, Sharon Brokenshire receiving an FA award last year

Athletes from South London Special League reveal how charity has changed their lives as it celebrates its 10th anniversary

by Ian Lamont

A "LIFE LINE", something that "keeps me calm" and "something that stops me just sitting indoors".

These are just three phrases used to describe the South London Special League this week, by the people who have been using the services of a charity that provides sporting opportunities for people with disabilities.

Last Wednesday, representatives of the league's adult teams played against a House of Commons team as part of their 10th anniversary celebrations.

The charity was set up in 2004 by Sharon Brokenshire to give children and adults with disabilities the chance to play football. Now, it offers many other sports and school holiday sessions.

Goalkeeper Richard Daly, 35, who has obsessive compulsive disorder and anxiety disorder, described how it has given structure to his life since 2006 and one memory in particular to treasure.

He said: "I got to play at the national FA disability finals. We won the London finals and then went to Old Trafford for the best experience of my life where we won silver."

"I look forward to coming every month."

"If I'm booking a holiday or doing anything else I make sure the dates don't clash. It has been great, because of the level of support and commitment.

"I've also done things like cooking and a healthy eating class."

Friends, he said, had been "in awe" when they heard he was to play against a House of Commons team.

The sides drew one game 2-2 and then the visitors won 4-0, at Blackheath Rugby Club's training ground next to Well Hall Pleasaunce in Eltham.

Richard Gausden, 32, who has borderline personality disorder, has been playing for four years.

"I played for Bromley Mental Health team and one of the other people got me to join," said the centre-forward. "I'm like a ticking time bomb. Anger is a big thing for me. This helps me calm down."

"Football has helped me a lot. Everyone here has something unique to them and it's really helped me come out of myself. No one judges you for your disability."

Darren Thomas, 43, has epilepsy and not only plays football but is now a level one coach. "I just come to enjoy myself and to save me sitting indoors too much," he said.

Other people to benefit from the league's activities include Emily Campbell, whose mother Kay praised the work of the SLSL team, led by Sharon, whose dedication has led to her receiving an MBE and a grass roots award from
